

RIO TINTO

STOP

PRECARIOUS WORK

GLOBAL DAY OF ACTION AT RIO TINTO

Unions around the globe are taking action today 7 October to demand good, safe jobs at Rio Tinto.

Rio Tinto is increasingly using precarious work around the world. Precarious work includes temporary, casual and contracted-out work that is often low-wage, low-benefit and unsafe. This is a threat to Rio Tinto workers, our unions, and our communities.

Also this year there have been worker fatalities at Rio Tinto in Canada, Chile, Guinea, Indonesia, Madagascar and South Africa.

Workers and unions around the world at Rio Tinto demand the company:

- Stop replacing permanent workers with precarious workers
- Provide safe jobs with good wages and benefits
- Force its suppliers and subcontractors to respect workers' rights, including health and safety rights
- Respect the right of workers and unions to meaningful participation in health and safety matters
